

Hi All,

A sad week with the funeral and Memorial Service at St.Stephen's for Phil Kershaw. Well over a hundred people came along to pay their last respects. The Church was packed. In the Jubilee Hall afterwards, where refreshments were served, Annie Dent , with help from Karen Hodgson, and with the agreement of Diana Kershaw, organised a display of photographs, taken by Annie, of some of the plays produced by Stella Abbey. Many included pictures of Phil and Diana, in the many roles they had played over the years. They will remain in the Jubilee Hall for a while, so next time you are in the hall take a look. It is a really nice display.

Winsham Street Fair is taking place this year on Saturday, June 25. Today the 'Theme' for the event is being announced. And very topical it is ,too. To find out just click on the Link in the E-Letter below.

I mentioned last week that a good deal of repair and renovation work would be taking place on the Winsham Web Museum. This is progressing well, and the details are in the e-letter.

For a bit of fun, in the weeks ahead there will be a Mystery Tour of the Museum. Just click on the link in the E-Letter and you will be transported to a part of the Museum that perhaps you have never visited. I hope you find the venues interesting and even a little nostalgic. If you then wish, you can go, on under your own steam, to explore further. Don't worry, you can't get lost! Enjoy!

John

The external appearance of the Jubilee Hall is now restored to what we believe it looked like nearly 130 years ago, when it was built. The difference now is that the glazing is very high-tech, conserving heat, preventing too much solar gain, and reducing noise both ways. It will make the hall more comfortable for users, and reduce heating costs. The work was done by Jamie Orr-Ewing.
